You jump to the island perched on the edge of an underground waterfall. It was a farther jump than you thought, and you almost slip and fall into the rushing river. In front of you, on a hastily erected pedestal is an orb no bigger than a pearl. From it emanates a powerful light.

A powerful force protects the object, preventing it from being removed, however, you think you might be able to destroy it.

- If no more than 1 hr has elapsed since game began, you may make a CR attack greater than 50 against the object to break it.
- If between 1 and 2 hours have elapsed since game began, you may make a CR attack greater than 40 against the object to break it.
- If between 2 and 3 hours have elapsed since game began, you may make a CR attack greater than 30 against the object to break it.
- If it is the last hour of game (between 3 and 4 hours elapsed since game start), you may make a CR attack greater than 20 against the object to break it.

If you choose to attack the orb and succeed in destroying it, tell a GM, asap.
